

INFORMATION ABOUT COOKIES ON LINDAHL.SE

Lindahl and cookies

By using this website you accept, and agree to Lindahl saving cookies on your computer, telephone or tablet.

What are cookies?

A cookie is a text file with information that is stored on your computer, telephone or tablet. Cookies save information that can then be read by the website.

Why do we use cookies?

We use cookies to identify you as a unique user and in that way to make certain activities on the website easier. Cookies allow the website to remember the choices you have made, such as forms you have completed and your language settings so that you don't need to reset the same information every time you visit the site. Cookies are used, amongst other things, to provide us with statistics and information on how many visitors we've had to the website and which pages they visited. These statistics then become an important part of our work in improving the website.

What cookies does Lindahl use?

- Persistent cookies, i.e. cookies that save a file for a long time on your computer. Persistent cookies describe, for example, the information that is new since you last visited the website. How long the cookies remain on your device will depend on the lifespan of the specific cookie and your web browser's settings.
- Session cookies, i.e. cookies that are saved temporarily in your computer's memory while you visit a website. When you leave the site, any session cookies that were used are deleted.
- Third-party cookies, i.e. cookies that come from a party other than the party responsible for the website. Third-party cookies make it possible to track a user's web-browsing history. Lindahl uses a number of third party cookies to collect information and statistics about the use of the website and for targeted advertising.

The table below describes the cookies that are used on Lindahl's website, the purpose of each cookie, and how long they are saved.

Manage your cookies

Most web browsers automatically accept cookies. You can change these settings so that you are warned as soon as a cookie is sent to your computer or you can create a default setting that blocks cookies. You can also choose to delete all cookies that are stored on your computer. The way you manage cookies differs between different web browsers, but normally you can change settings using the menu that concerns tools or alternatives. If you use several devices to view and access a website, you must ensure that the web browser in each device is set according to your choices for cookies. If you decide to block Lindahl's cookies, the functionality of the web site may be restricted.
